

AM I JINXED, CURSED, OR HEXED? A TEXAS HOODOO ORIGINAL TAROT SPREAD!

This is a tarot card spread that I developed to help you determine if you are cursed, jinxed or hexed; furthermore, it can help you determine WHO has done this to you. I adapted this spread from Mary K. Greer's 8 Card Yes No Spread.

Get your tarot deck and take out the following cards:

From the Major Arcana:

The Fool

The Magician

The High Priestess

The Emperor

The Empress

The Devil

From the Minor Arcana

All the court cards

Set aside The Devil Card. Shuffle the rest of the cards (the Major Arcana that you took out and the Court Cards) at least three times.

Deal out 7 cards and add The Devil Card back in. Shuffle again, to mix The Devil Card back in. Lay out the cards in a circle as demonstrated by the picture.

Note where The Devil Card appears. If The Devil card appears in positions 2, 3 or 4 the answer is YES and the court cards/Major Arcana cards that appear here indicate to you who might be working against you. If The Devil Card appears in the 1 or 8 position, then your answer is MAYBE, in which case your answer is much more complicated because it is not a definitive answer, and then you also have a selection of people to look at who might be either working FOR you or AGAINST you. If The Devil Card appears in the 5, 6, or 7 position, then the answer is NO (great!). In this case you might be just having a string of regular bad luck or you might look for more ordinary, mundane causes for your situation.

<http://hoodoo-conjure.com>

<http://texas-hoodoo.com>

<https://www.facebook.com/groups/texas.hoodoo/>

How to Tell a Hex from a Curse

source: http://www.ehow.com/how_2176175_tell-hex-curse.html

A hex is generally a spell or bewitchment. It is derived from "hexe", a German word for "witch", and comes from the folklore of the Pennsylvania Dutch. In folklore it can be good or bad, but now is generally known by its negative connotations. Hexes can be made for hire, with the witch being able to be paid for both inflicting a hex and

A jinx is continual or repeated bad luck. It is usually the result of a fatal accident. One of the more famous jinxes comes with the Hope Diamond. In the 17th century Madame de Montespan, the mistress of King Louis XIV, owned the diamond and it is during this time that the stone is said to have become jinxed. She was believed to have conducted so called "black masses." Over 100 years later, King Henry the XVI gave the Hope Diamond to Marie Antoinette. Ms. Antoinette loaned this piece to her friend the Princesse de Lamballe. Not only did both Princesse de Lamballe and Marie Antoinette get executed, but every other owner of the Hope Diamond has suffered a tragic demise.

A curse is a malevolent spell that is purposefully done to inflict harm upon another. It has been a part of magic and alchemy since the beginning, and can also be done by Catholic priests. It is derived from "cursein", an Anglo Saxon worse meaning "to invoke harm or evil upon." Curses can be both spoken and written. A famous written curse is the anathema proclaimed by the Catholic pope to excommunicate someone from the church. Objects can also be cursed and can affect anyone who owns the object. Cursed objects can affect people with bad luck, misfortune, ill health and even death.